

Social Media Coaching

The Internet, Facebook, MySpace, Social Networking What comes to mind when you hear these words? And what place do they have in the world of recruiting?

Are they just kid's play, or are they more than that now? Do you need a 13 year old to explain them to you? Not really.

You can become comfortable with the Internet (even Facebook and more) and it can help make your recruitment work easier.

- Do you want to connect with new people?
- Potential employees, maybe?
- Do you want to increase your employment brand exposure?
- Become known as an employer of choice?
- Do you want to attract people to your organization that want to be there?
- Without leaving your desk?
- And do you want to do all this for less money?

Through one-on-one coaching or workshops we help individuals and organizations quickly get a handle on the new reality of recruiting.

Our coaching services focus on enhancing your skills. If you can use Microsoft Word or Outlook you already have the skills you need to use these new tools that really do make your life easier.

In 2008 just having a great website is no longer enough when it comes to attracting "The Right People." Learn how easy it to learn and apply these skills to your recruitment needs.

Learn about these tools that everyone keeps talking about (like Facebook) and how they can help you today!
